~~Legislative Theatre: Using performance to make politics~~

Legislative theater is essentially a forum theater performance — a short play about a particular issue or set of issues that ends in a crisis, which the audience is then invited to help solve by taking the place of one of the characters on stage (see TACTIC: Forum theater) — but with a key difference. The difference is that the audience interventions are followed by theatre called "legislative theatre" to give his voters the opportunity to voice their opinions. The objective is to open up a dialogue between citizens and institutional entities so that there is a flow of power between both groups. Boal calls this type of legislative process a "transitive democracy", which lies in between direct democracy (practiced in ancient Greece) and delegate ...
