The Role Of The School
Roles in schools. Schools benefit from a variety of different staff that support the learning and welfare of pupils. In addition to the main teacher in each classroom, there are many other jobs inside and outside of lessons that contribute to how a school runs and how pupils learn. These jobs are typically called support roles, and make up half of the workforce in schools.

Roles in schools
The Role of Schools. The promotion of healthy diets and physical activity in school is essential to fight the childhood obesity epidemic. Because children and adolescents spend a significant time of their young lives in school, the school environment is an ideal setting to acquire knowledge and skills about healthy choices and to increase physical activity levels.

Planning the strategic direction of the school. Overseeing financial performance of the school and ensuring money is well spent. Holding the headteacher or school leadership to account. The governor role is strategic rather than operational. Governors don't get involved with the day to day running of a school, instead supporting and challenging the school's leadership team to drive school improvement.

About the role | Governors for Schools
Governors work together to provide independent oversight of the management and operation of a school, with the aim of improving the quality of education provided and raising standards. A school's governing body does not run the school on a day-to-day basis; this is the job of the Head Teacher and other senior staff.

The Role of a School Governor - Governors for Schools
From a purely financial viewpoint the school is a business; the largest schools may have a budget of £10 million and a workforce of 350 or more. Even very small community schools still under the auspices of the Local Authority have a responsibility to function as a 'going concern' in business terms.
